

time is rolling by and it doesn't hurt like it used to do glad to lose my youth and learn a little more now i watch in fondness people lose there minds at all the little things all the little things there's a new kinda human thats been born as we speak who will think for its self and feel no use for hate

i hear people asking for change how can we make it better ?
i suggest and take it how you will become the change

but the kids are killing parents oh ungrateful for the lives they've been given what are we teaching? and the people we pay to care keep on selling new improved lies with no intention of stopping anything and the weekends are made for drinking so we can hide the things in side i think a sober man could make a difference

i hear people asking for change
how can we make it better ?

i suggest and take it how you will
become the change

might tough admit but were responsible for everything a little less blah blah a little more do do can make the difference the world can change if we believe it will so become the change